Stronghold Turned Over to New Irish Government

A NEW epoch was begun in Irish history when the strongholds of the British military and police in the Irish capital were evacuated by their former occupants and taken possession of by members of the army of the Irish Free State. Especially gratifying to Irishmen was the occupation of the Beggars Bush military barracks, to which especial odium was attached as the headquarters of the hated auxiliaries. Headed by a band of Irish pipers in native costume, a company of republican soldiers marched triumphantly through the principal thoroughfares of the city and entered the famous military stronghold amid scenes of great enthusiasm. The volunteers were in full uniform and carried rifles with fixed bayonets. Afterward they were inspected by the Minister of Defense and the new Chief of Staff. Recruiting is said to be going on vigorously to swell the ranks of the army to the permitted strength.

The mileage is less, the rate cheaper and wheat can be shipped all the year round.

Cycle of Events in the Life of George Washington, Patriot, So

The outstanding episodes in the career of Washington are here shown as in a vision. Beginning at upper left and moving directly across the pages, one sees him as a surveyor in his early days; as yielding to the pleading of his mother not to join the navy; as leading the life of a planter with his wife, Martha Washington, and as making a triumphal entry into Trenton, N. J. Starting again at left and moving to the right along the middle row one sees his meeting with Alexander Hamilton; his assumption of command of the army; the taking of the oath as first President, the brilliant victory won by him at Princeton. The lower pictures, from left to right, show him at the Battle of Monmouth; with Lafayette at Valley Forge, and rallying the troops after Braddock's defeat in the French and Indian War.

Ex-Kaiser's Palace Used as Motion-Picture Studio

THE downfall of Imperialism in Germany, the greatest exponent of its haughtiness and arrogance, has a striking illustration in this picture of a photoplay being produced in one of the great rooms of the ex-Kaiser's palace in Berlin which had witnessed so many dazzling functions when the now exiled War Lord was at the height of his power. The film is one that deals with the life of Frederick the Great. A loud outcry was raised against the so-called "sacrilege" by the irreconcilables of the old regime, but the price paid by the film producers overcame all opposition.

Work on U. S. Battle- ship South Dakota Stopped

AN echo of the Arms Conference that recently came to an end in Washington is found in this view of the United States superdreadnought South Dakota at the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Navy Yard. A month ago hundreds of men were working on the huge ship, which is about 38 per cent. completed. Another ship, the Indiana, in the same yard was also being constructed. Now, in accordance with the proposal of Secretary Hughes to "scrap" a large proportion of our battleships, work has been suspended and will not be resumed. Eventually the uncompleted ship will be dismantled and its material used for peace purposes.

THERE are few if any more wholesome organizations than the Boy Scouts of America, and none that promise to have a more beneficial effect upon the coming generations. It aims to develop character, initiative and resourcefulness in boys by cultivating their interest in activities of practical every-day value under carefully selected leadership. Character development manifests itself in health, efficiency, chivalry, loyalty, patriotism and good citizenship, and these things form the keynote of the movement. The organization has recently rounded out its twelfth year of existence, it having been incorporated Feb. 8, 1910. It has had a phenomenal growth in that period. There are now about 430,000 members and 20,000 troops. Over 100,000 men are also interested in the movement as council members, troop committeemen and scout masters. An average of over 200 boys join the organization daily. During the war the boys did excellent service, co-operating as far as their age would permit with various war committees. One out of every twenty-one Liberty Bonds sold was by a Boy Scout.

Miss du Pont, now Playing in "Foolish Wives," Shows Flexibility of the Arch

"The thing people don't seem to understand is that the foot is a cantilever spring so made that when it is allowed to function normally it carries the body with the greatest possible ease and resiliency."—Dr. Douglas Stewart, in Physical Culture.

Cantilever Shoes are so named because, though modishly designed, they are constructed upon the same principle as your foot.

Instead of being built with a stiff shank, reinforced by a strip of steel hidden away between soles, Cantilevers are fashioned with a flexible arch—the most important improvement in the making of modern shoes.

Instead of compelling your feet to fit them, they do the fitting. You lace them up to a glove fit under your arches; they furnish precisely the support needed there.

Instead of cramping every step, that flexible arch agrees with every movement of yours. Hence the free and natural exercise of muscles, the prevention or correction of foot-strain, your escape from fatigue and more serious troubles, and that improvement in the circulation of your blood which adds to your vigor and to your appearance.

Many widths insure you an individual fit. Except in costly made-to-order shoes, how often have you had that? And in Cantilevers you secure your own personal fit in a model not only supremely comfortable, but good-looking.

If no dealer listed at the left is near you, write to the manufacturers, Morse & Burt Co., 11 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., for the address of a near-by dealer and a copy of the Cantilever Shoe Booklet.
